> ondout suggests that we might find a good market for a part of our rice production in Europe and the Eastern States. He says "There is but one solution for the difficulty of our over-stocked rice market, viz: to send rice and paddy to the East. There the consumers have no predilection for Chinese rice, but would (I should think) prefer ours to Chinese. If the paddy is dried as many of our producers dry it, it would of course spail on a long voyage, but if well dried, it will keep. If some enterprising person would set up one of Gardiola's grain-drying machines (described in Scientific American) in Honotels for the purpose of sorting and drying paddy, it would pay the cost back in one year. To saip rice to San Francisco When there is enough there already to last a whole year is stupid." BETEL LEAVES -A correspondent noticing this article among the exports, inquires what it is, and what use is made of it. The betel which is quite extensively cultivated in and around Honolule is a climbing shrub of the species known as Chovica Malamiri. The geous was notil recently classed as a pepper. The leaf is of a smooth leathery texture, bloog in shape, and is a narretic stimulant. The plant requires much best, with moisture and shade. and is trained up on poles or trellises. This is unquestionable the firest lot of pure breed fine wool sheep that has ever been ed by imported Rams from the celebrated Rambonillet Stock Farm in France and are all prime young backs, and in the very best condition. The wool from these sheep is in a comparatively clean condition, free from all foreign matter, except the stard wilk of the fibre. This lot of sheep cost $5.500 cash, which is a very low figure, considering prices that have been paid for lately imported stock,

MILL BURNED. -On Wednesday night of last week the mill buildings of the Hind's Plantation at Kohala, Hawaii, were burned to the ground. The origin of the fire is unknown, but it is thought that it may have originated from the pipe of the watchman, who was himself asleep at the time of the fire. | jority of 5 Republicans. and who narrowly escaped being a victim of the catastrophe. Some forty tons of sugar was in the building and partially shared its fate. The building was insured in the Northern Assurance Company for $10,000, which does not cover the loss. In view of the not infrequent destruction of mills and boiling houses in this country, by fire, we would end, le addition to the night watchman alcady employed by every pradent manager, the in-moduction and use of the indicators used in all and ability, will have an important position on the large manufacturing and other establishments in the States, whereby the failure of the watchman to attend to his duty is revealed the next morning.

This Matter or Stamps.-We published last week a very reasonable letter from a correspondent in regard to the great inconvenience which we are all at times put to, in not being able to procure American postage stumps. It is a fact well known (to all who have sufficient intelligence to know anything) that in order to send a letter through the United States, whether it be to Canada, Cuba, Europe, or elsewhere, it is just as essential to put on a United States are cent stamp, as a Hawaiian wanted the six-cent stamp. It is also snother well known and unfortunate fact that private parties here will not no keep American stamps for sale, as there is no profit expire. to be made for the trouble and time expended in so Democrat. doing. This being the situation, what better plan could be suggested than that the Postmaster General, who is a servant of the public, and who is liberally paid for his time and services from the public funds, should keep on hand for the accommodation of that same public, the stamps which they are compelled to use. If the Postmaster General and his staff of assistants are overworked, we should have no objection to the employment of another clerk, but let the department furnish the stamps. The present system is too suggestive of making bricks without straw. As for the ignorant bleat in the last issue of the P.C. A., on this subject, we recommend the writer to post himself a little before he undertakes to enlighten the public.

Loss or SCHOONER IOLANI.-This little craft which was launched but a few months ago, and which had already acquired the reputation of being decidedly unfortunate luck. The cook of the senooner performed an act of heroism, which we trust will be rewarded, for it was a thing which but few men-none besides Hawaiians-would have dared to attempt, or attempting, would have been able to successfully entry through. When the vessel struck the rocks he took a bag of silver coin containing some $500, for the Halku Plantation, er, and to whom he delivered up the currency. The owners of the lolani have our cordial sympathy, and we hope she may yet be saved without having sustained any serious injury.
